The shooting left nine people injured and the suspect remains outstanding.

On Friday June 9, 2023, at approximately 9:07 P.M., San Francisco Police officers from Mission Station responded to the area of 24th and Treat Streets for a report of a shooting. When officers arrived on scene, they located multiple victims suffering from gunshot wounds. Officers summoned medics to the scene to treat and transport the victims to a local area hospital. A total of nine victims were struck by gunfire during the incident. All victims are expected to survive.

“This kind of violence on our streets is unacceptable,” Chief of Police William Scott said. “People should feel safe to go out in San Francisco without fear of being victims of gun violence. Our investigators are working diligently on this case, and we will have a visible police presence moving forward in the community where this occurred.”

Investigators believe that this incident appears to be targeting and isolated. There is no known threat to the public at this time.

SFPD investigators have been working diligently on the shooting incident. At this time, we are unable to confirm any suspect information, nor have we released such information to the public. This is an active and ongoing investigation. We will release further details when they become available.

No arrests have been made. This is an open and active investigations. Anyone with information regarding this incident is asked to contact the SFPD at 415-575-4444 or Text a Tip to TIP411.
